

Net neutrality is the embodiment of democratic principles on the internet. Revoking net neutrality regulations violates First Amendment principles by preventing equal access to information. Revoking these regulations blatantly disregards public opinion in favor of corporations.